

Accents, Ligatures and Non-Latin Text

Zoë Brontë, José Núñez, and Søren Kierkegård

12 septembre 2026

1 Accented Latin text (UTF-8 source)

Café, naïve, résumé, façade, crème brûlée, jalapeño, piñata, señor, Ångström, smörgåsbord, Ærø, Œuvre, Straße, Zürich, Košice, Łódź, Gdańsk, Ørsted, Þórshöfn, Ísafjörður.

The same words through L^AT_EX accent commands: Café, naïve, résumé, façade, crème brûlée, jalapeño, Ångström, smörgåsbord, Ærø, Œuvre, Straße, Zürich, Košice, Łódź, Gdańsk, Ørsted, Þórshöfn.

2 Ligatures, dashes and quotes

Five fluffy waffles offer efficient office affluence — ff, fi, fl, ffi, ffl. En dash: pages 12–15; em dash — like this; “double quotes” and ‘single quotes’; ellipsis. . . ; 25 % and § 4; © 2026; £75.

3 Greek and Cyrillic words in text

The Greek word for typesetting is stoicheiothesía, and the Cyrillic spelling of Moscow is Moskva. Their native forms need a font with those scripts and are therefore given only in transliteration in this T1-encoded document.

4 CJK via inputenc utf8

東京は日本の首都です。 (“Tokyo is the capital of Japan.”)
排版是一门艺术。 (“Typesetting is an art.”)

5 Mixed script paragraph

The résumé of Søren — filed under “K” — lists Zürich, Łódź and 東京 as places of residence, 2019–2026.